To Retail Dealers

AND PARTIES INTENDING TO

DECORATE CHRISTMAS TREES

—FOR—

Churches, Sunday Schools, Etc.

We have Four Thousand Dollars' worth of Toys and Holiday Goods more than we can possibly sell, no matter how brisk trade is with us. Our buyers must have been under the weather when they bought this stock, because it is an impossibility to sell it at retail.

We have laid it all out in lots, and will job it to the trade of Los Angeles and surrounding towns at what it cost us to import, with freight added, for cash, giving you an advantage over all persons in trade in your lines who bought elsewhere, as none can buy as cheap as the People's Store.

This is no advertising medium. We do not do this for the sake of effect. We have $4000 worth of goods that we prefer to sell to packing up, and will make the price to you at figures that will enable you to undersell us.

We ask all, irrespective of any feelings toward us from business motives, to improve this opportunity, as its a golden one, and means money in your pockets. The first loss is always the best, and we prefer to sacrifice in time, and not wait until it is too late.

THE President wrote a message and Judge J. Tilden a letter, and the Democratic New York Sun rises long enough to say, "How the pigmies dwindle when the giant speaks."

AS Irish Parliament at Dublin is one of the Liberal schemes now proposed. Nothing is easier than for the Gladstone party and English politicians generally to do a good act—when they are obliged to.

THE four dynamiters arrested in San Francisco prove to be foreigners who have lived but a short time in this country. It smacks of Know Nothingism to proclaim this piece of news, of course, but our esteemed contemporary, the Herald, will have to make the most of it!

DR. C. C. O'DONNELL gets a large share of the odium for the recent dynamite plot in San Francisco, and gets hissed out by the dynamiters' friends as well. There will shortly be no rest for the sole of the ghoulish Coroner's foot. Nobody has so few friends as the busiest demagogue when he is found out.

THE action of the Council in postponing the election of Chief of Police until next week, has given the friends of Chief Horner an opportunity to rally, and they are doing it in force. Emphatic indorsements of Chief Horner's administration are made in a public way by Judges Brunson and Chaney, County Recorder Gibson, Justice H. C. Gaylord, Col. R. S. Baker, Col. W. H. Morford, George Gephard, T. J. Wachtel, Major George H. Franks, D. E. Miles, ex-President of the Council; Frank McCoye, Major Thomas Bell, F. A. Gardner, A. F. Hinchman, V. Del, Major N. A. Covarrubias, T. H. Boyd, E. P. Johnson, J. M. Dunsan and Wm. Pridham. This is a strong showing, and more indorsements are on the way.

AMUSEMENTS.

THE ROMAN STUDENT.—After the brilliant Orlando performances, it must needs be a good opera to hold its own and win favor from a Los Angeles audience. The Roman Student did it. The assemblage at the Grand last evening was fair in numbers and thoroughly appreciative. The evening's chief attraction in the appearance of Miss Carrie Godfrey, the "Katisha" of the former entertainments, in the leading role of Gilda, "the bride of the Beggar Student." As "Katisha" she sang a comic and persecuted—albeit not very long—part to perfection. Last night she took a high soprano part, and proved out into the handsomest woman of the troupe. She was a favorite from the audience in this role, and received numerous encores. Mr. MacCollin did not find such opportunities to display his talents as a comedian as he did in the noble Jap, but he nonetheless made several good hits and in a local "gag" or two. Willet Howard made a very debonaire "Ollendorf" and sang well. Miss Franc D. Gilmore was further honors as a soubrette and sang charmingly. She was called before the curtain at three times. Mr. Branson was excellent as "Janitska"—and the support was good throughout. To-night and to-morrow night The Beggar Student will be repeated, and The Mikado will be on the boards for matinee-to-morrow.

ITEMS.—The sale for single night performances of the Judic opera season will commence to-day at 10 o'clock a; the box office at the Opera House. Quite a number of season seats have been subscribed for, and the success of the season is assured. Miss Judic is everywhere conceded to be a consummate artiste, and in this in which France has produced two or three; all, however, inferior by the Judic element of Paris. She comes supported by a very fine company and with a full complement of chorus.

Meeting of the Association Last Night.

The Association met in their hall, 57 Spring street, Geo. T. Hanley in the chair.

The new members were elected, making the membership now ninety-five in all.

The committee appointed to wait upon the City Council reported that they had discharged their duty, and that they were received by the Council.

The committee was continued with instructions to arrange a future meeting between the Council and members of this association, and that the Surveyor and City Engineer be invited to be present.

A resolution was offered, discussed and passed, to the effect that the City Council be requested to appoint a Sanitary and City Engineer who will favor the use of water-power that is now going to waste.

The Secretary reported collections to the sum of $217.50; expenses, $90.73; balance on hand, $126.77.

Geo. T. Hanley was elected President, and Charles Coulter Vice President, to serve until next July.

A vote of thanks was extended to John Hall and the Committee on Exhibit of the Materials at the Fair.

The question for discussion at the next meeting, on the third Thursday of January, is "How can the saving water be best utilized for manufacturing purposes?"

Messrs. Coulter, Winter and Milliken were appointed to lead the discussion.

John Hall, J. E. Carter and Charles Hoskins were appointed to report on natural gas at the next meeting.

The following resolutions were adopted, and the daily papers requested to publish the same:

WHEREAS, The profitable utilization of the vast and diversified natural products available for manufacturing purposes in the territory tributary to Los Angeles depends in a great measure upon the establishment of new and the promotion of existing manufacturing industries in Los Angeles and surrounding towns; and,

WHEREAS, The continued prosperity of Los Angeles in particular and of southern California in general depends largely upon the increase and expansion of home manufacturing enterprises;

Resolved, That the Los Angeles Manufacturers' Association respectfully urge upon all citizens interested in the welfare and continued development of the boundless resources of Southern California to patronize home provided quality and price are equal, only home manufactured articles, and thus contribute in the most direct and effectual manner towards the rapid development of our resources, wealth and population.

Minnesota Association.

A regular meeting of the Minnesota Association was held in Odd Fellows' hall last evening. About seventy-five ladies and gentlemen were present. The society adopted a constitution and by-laws for its permanent organization, and the following officers were elected: President, Colonel E. P. Johnson; Vice-Presidents, Mrs. A. M. Dunsmoor, Professor Ira Moore, Mrs. J. T. Brown, Dr. M. Hagan, Hon. F. M. Johnson; Secretary, G. W. Cox; Corresponding Secretary, Mrs. Daniel Pinkin; Financial Secretary, Dr. W. E. Lindley; Treasurer, F. C. Howes. Executive Committee, T. Kelly, Daniel Pinkin and J. T. Brown.

Knights Templar Election.

At the stated conclave held last evening, Cœur de Lion Commandery No. 9, K. T., elected the following officers to serve for the ensuing templar year: T. H. Ward, Eminent Commander; W. C. Avery, Generalissimo; W. A. Morgan, Captain General; N. F. Story, Prelate; H. Esterbrooker, Senior Warden; J. B. Lankershim, Junior Warden; Albert Howe, Treasurer; J. E. S. Bell, Recorder.

WASHINGTON.

Hoar's Bill on Presidential Succession

DEBATED AND PASSED BY THE SENATE.

Dakota Determined to Enter the Union—Markham's Measure for Aiding the Mission Indians.

Associated Press Dispatches to The Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17.—Randall has prepared a bill for introduction in the House providing that Presidential electors shall hold office for four years, and elect within one month a successor to President and Vice President whenever vacancies exist. An election of President would be necessary only in case a vacancy should occur simultaneously with a vacancy in the office of Vice-President. The Secretary of State and the other Cabinet officers, in regular order, have a right of succession during the interregnum.

A BILL FOR THE MISSION INDIANS.

Congressman Markham is preparing a bill in behalf of the Mission Indians of Southern California. These are the only Indians whose injuries excited the sympathies of Helen Hunt Jackson. Markham's bill proposes that each male Indian be granted one hundred and sixty acres of land, ten acres of which shall be tillable, and in case the reservations do not afford sufficient land to supply each male Indian with that amount, the bill provides that a commission shall be appointed to purchase the necessary land for that purpose.

THE RAILWAY TAX CASES.

Motion was made and submitted to the Supreme Court of the United States to-day, to dismiss the case of the county of San Mateo, plaintiff in error, vs. the Southern Pacific Railway Company, John W. Ross appeared in support of the motion, and P. L. Rhodes in opposition thereto.

NEEDED COAST IMPROVEMENTS.

The estimates of the Superintendent of the Coast and Geodetic Survey for the next fiscal year amount to $268,000. Included in the estimates is the sum of $30,000 for a re-survey of San Francisco Bay, and an examination of the San Francisco bar and entrance to the harbor, and of the mouth of the Sacramento and San Joaquin rivers, a work which, in the opinion of the Superintendent, has been rendered highly desirable by the marked changes in recent years due to deposits from hydraulic mining.

XLIX CONGRESS—FIRST SESSION.

Senate.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17.—In the Senate Mr. Hoar, from the Committee on Privileges and Elections, reported favorably the bill to fix the day for the meeting of electors for President and Vice-President, and to provide for and regulate the counting of the vote for President and Vice-President, and the decision of questions arising therefrom. Mr. Hoar said that he would call up the bill for action immediately after the disposal of the Presidental succession bill and the bill fixing the salary of United States District Judges. The bill went to the calendar.

The Chair laid before the Senate the resolution of Mr. Butler calling for a committee to inquire as to the alleged organization of the Territory of Dakota into a State and the alleged election of United States Senators.

Mr. Harrison did not think a committee desirable on Executive business. The Senate had passed a bill for their relief, but the bill had not passed the other House.

Mr. Butler inquired by what authority the United States Senators had been elected in Dakota.

Mr. Harrison replied that he could show that Senators had heretofore been elected under precisely similar circumstances, and Dakota had a right to go as far as Tennessee, California and Michigan had proceeded.

Mr. Butler remarked that if the proceedings in Dakota were regular and proper, no one would more quickly recognize the fact than himself. He had offered the resolution for the purpose of ascertaining the facts. He thought the Senate of Indiana had been working himself into a passion unnecessarily.

Mr. Harrison replied that he was not in a passion. "The Senator," said he, "may not be capable of a passion, or he would be able to discriminate." [Laughter.] Mr. Harrison briefly reviewed the question of the admission of Territories, and said that the Democrats, at every rate, ought not to question the propriety of the action of Dakota.

Mr. Butler said that no question of politics was involved.

Mr. Harrison was glad that Mr. Butler took so statesmanlike a view of the subject.

Mr. Butler inquired whether Mr. Harrison would sustain an action by the Territory of Utah similar to the recent action of Dakota.

Mr. Harrison replied that he would, but reserved to Congress the power to approve or disapprove their constitution, which Dakota now recognized and admitted by Dakota.

Mr. McMillin said that Minnesota had been admitted to the Union without any enabling act, and Democratic Senators had been elected ready to take their seats immediately upon the passage of the act of admission.

After further debate, the matter went over till to-morrow, and the Presidential succession bill was taken up, and Mr. Evarts addressed the Senate on it. He took the ground that the succession provided for by the bill now before the Senate was the only possible constitutional exercise of the very limited power accorded by the Constitution to Congress. Mr. Evarts spoke about one hour, and was listened to with the utmost attention, both on the floor and in the galleries.

[The following words from Mr. Edmunds in reply to Mr. Evarts, and differing from him as to the "very limited power of Congress," the Edmunds amendment was voted down—yeas, 31; nays, 37. The Edmunds amendment was the one striking out the clause.]

The bill then passed without division, as reported from the committee.

House of Representatives.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17.—In the House Mr. Dibble, of South Carolina, asked leave to introduce a joint resolution, proposing a constitutional amendment, providing that in case of removal from office by death, resignation or constitutional inability, both of the President and Vice-President of the United States, the office of President shall devolve on a second Vice-President, who shall be voted for in distinct ballots at the same time and in like manner, and for the same term as the President and Vice-President, by electors appointed by the several States. The second Vice-President shall preside over the Senate in the absence of the Vice-President or in case the office of President shall devolve upon the Vice-President.

Mr. Randall, of Pennsylvania, said that he had a like measure, which he would like to go with the proposition of the gentleman from South Carolina.

Mr. Tucker, of Virginia, saw no reason why the measures should have precedence, and he objected to their introduction. The subject of the rules then came up for discussion, Mr. Morrison, of Illinois, stating that he would try to close the general debate at 4 o'clock today.

Mr. Long, of Massachusetts, agreed with the gentleman who demanded the largest parliamentary freedom for representatives of the people here. There was only one way in which the House could have absolute liberty. That was to abolish all rules and all committees and all restriction on debate, and to remand itself to the condition of a debating society. Nobody proposed to do that. The simple question before the House was whether the House, having agreed that reform measures were necessary to cure the evils under which it was suffering, should go further and take from the Appropriation Committee the bills heretofore in its charge and distribute them among eight or nine other committees. The result would be friction and delay, and possibly combinations. The thing to do was to shear the Appropriation Committee of every vestige of power of enacting general legislation in the form of riders or amendments to appropriation bills. This power should be taken away, but the appropriation bills should be left with one committee. The question was not simply to distribute bills; it went further than that. The proposition now was to destroy, abolish and annihilate the Appropriation Committee as far as responsibility for the expenditures of the country was concerned.

Mr. McMillin, of Tennessee, did not believe that the question presented was one of confidence or want of confidence in the integrity of members of the House. The question was whether the House should have a committee supervising the expenditures of the government, and he would oppose a distribution of the appropriation bills for the same reason that he would a proposition to divide the duty of the Committee on Ways and Means—to give the subject of tariff to one committee and of internal revenue to another. He regarded the proposed change as one which would permit amendments increasing expenditures and rule out those tending to reduce them.

Several other speeches followed. Randall, of Pennsylvania, in closing the debate in opposition to the majority report, said that he knew, and members who had served upon the Appropriation Committee knew, that in the effort to resist undue appropriations they had been engaged in a thankless task, but he had never known that there would be those in public station who would rise up and condemn a man or set of men who were engaged in the laudable purpose of saving the expenditure of public money. The gentleman from New York (Hiscock) had stated, as he (Randall) thought to his discredit, that on one occasion, in order to execute a certain policy, he had found it incumbent on him to delay appropriation bills. He (Randall) submitted that as to the tariff, river and harbor and inter-state commerce bills, the Committee on Appropriations never had interposed, except when it was essential that Congress should pass appropriation bills. The policy which the Committee on Appropriations had adopted when under the control of the Democratic party had been one of economy. The founder of Democracy, Jefferson, said that there should be no money appropriated for any purpose unless there was direct authority in the Constitution of the United States for the end. The River and Harbor bill was only objected to when it went outside of the Constitution, and Congress had no right to collect taxes in order to make such a distribution of them. He did not say that one set of men were abler than another, not that one set possessed more integrity of purpose than another; he resisted the proposed change solely because he believed it was entering on the dangerous field of appropriation of the public money.

Mr. Morrison, of Illinois, said the assumption of the gentleman from Pennsylvania, that any committee was at fault with the appropriation committee or any member of it, because it had helped to reduce expenditures, was in a large part gratuitous, and the assumption or inference intended to be drawn from these remarks that everybody who had participated in making this report had for his purpose an increase of expenditures, or that the adoption of this report would increase expenditures, was equally gratuitous.

After a few remarks by Mr. Barrows, of Michigan, in support of the proposed change, the motion was read by clauses for amendment.

Mr. Springer, of Illinois, offered an amendment for a division of the Committee on Rivers and Canals into two committees, and this proposition was favored by Mr. Henderson, of Illinois; Mr. Murphy, of Iowa, and others of the advocates of the Hennepin canal scheme, and by members from interests of railways and canals were so antagonistic, the one to the other, that they should not be combined under the jurisdiction of one committee.

The House, however, refused to order a division by a vote of 94 to 133.

A proposition to create a "constitutional amendment" committee, represented by Mr. Hayne, of Pennsylvania, having been defeated through the vigorous opposition of Mr. Tucker, of Virginia, an amendment was offered by Mr. Payne, of New York, to give the committee on elections, and Dakota a right to go as far as Tennessee, California and Michigan had proceeded.

Mr. Butler remarked that if the proceedings in Dakota were regular and proper, no one would more quickly recognize the fact than himself. He had offered the resolution for the purpose of ascertaining the facts. He thought the Senate of Indiana had been working himself into a passion unnecessarily.

Mr. Harrison replied that he was not in a passion. "The Senator," said he, "may not be capable of a passion, or he would be able to discriminate." [Laughter.] Mr. Harrison briefly reviewed the question of the admission of Territories, and said that the Democrats, at every rate, ought not to question the propriety of the action of Dakota.

Mr. Butler said that no question of politics was involved.

Mr. Harrison was glad that Mr. Butler took so statesmanlike a view of the subject.

HOME RULE WINS.

The Liberals and Parnellites Combine

TO GIVE IRELAND SELF-GOVERNMENT.

Gladstone to Suppress Salisbury, and Become the Liberator of the Emerald Isle.

Associated Press Dispatches to The Times.

LONDON, Dec. 17.—The Pall Mall Gazette this afternoon announces that despite the partial denial of Gladstone this morning, a Liberal scheme for Home Rule in Ireland has been decided upon. This scheme provides for the creation of an Irish Parliament at Dublin, the acts of which the Crown will reserve the right to veto only upon advice of Irish members, who will continue to sit in the Imperial Parliament at Westminster, and take part in Imperial legislation. The scheme further requires Parnell to furnish guarantees that the rights of the minority and the interests of landlords shall be protected.

GLADSTONE'S PURPOSE.

DUBLIN, Dec. 17.—A London dispatch to the Irish Times says: Should the Queen's speech at the opening of Parliament not allude to local government for Ireland, Gladstone will move an amendment to the royal address, stating that such a measure for Ireland is necessary, and the Parnellites will support the motion. Gladstone will then take office and introduce a bill granting Home Rule to Ireland.

GLADSTONE DEFINES HIS PLAN.

LONDON, Dec. 17.—The following additional telegram was received from Gladstone at a late hour last night: "My reply in regard to the Standard's statements applies also to those of the Pall Mall Gazette and the Daily News. Although those statements were unauthorized, the proposals may conveniently be canvassed. Only an Irish Parliament will meet the case. Local councils would be useless. The right to veto the acts of the Irish Ministry would be an illusion. I propose instead the exercise of sovereign power on the advice of a Minister responsible to the Imperial Parliament. The suggestion of an Irish Privy Council survives only as a relic. Cabinet questions, commerce and police are difficult matters, but, with limitations, I believe that Home Rule may safely be granted, and that it would tend to raise the character of the Irish members."

The Press Association says: Gladstone, forseeing increase in the strength of the Parnell party, drafted a scheme four months ago for the self government of Ireland, according to which a power of veto by the Crown could be exercised only on advice of the Privy Council convened especially to discuss the subject in question. The other points in the scheme were the same as already published. The subject was submitted to a few political friends of Gladstone. Since the elections there have been no formal consultations on the subject, and it is not known whether or not the details of the scheme have since been modified. It is supposed that Gorchen, who is almost certain to be Chancellor of the Exchequer in the next Gladstone Cabinet, will support the scheme.

After a few remarks by Mr. Barrows, of Michigan, in support of the proposition, the motion was read by clauses for amendment.

Mr. Springer, of Illinois, offered an amendment for a division of the Committee on Rivers and Canals into two committees, and this proposition was favored by Mr. Henderson, of Illinois; Mr. Murphy, of Iowa, and others of the advocates of the Hennepin canal scheme, and by members from interests of railways and canals were so antagonistic, the one to the other, that they should not be combined under the jurisdiction of one committee.

The policy which the Committee on Appropriations had adopted when under the control of the Democratic party had been one of economy. The founder of Democracy, Jefferson, said that there should be no money appropriated for any purpose unless there was direct authority in the Constitution of the United States for the end. The River and Harbor bill was only objected to when it went outside of the Constitution, and Congress had no right to collect taxes in order to make such a distribution of them. He did not say that one set of men were abler than another, not that one set possessed more integrity of purpose than another; he resisted the proposed change solely because he believed it was entering on the dangerous field of appropriation of the public money.

Mr. Morrison, of Illinois, said the assumption of the gentleman from Pennsylvania, that any committee was at fault with the appropriation committee or any member of it, because it had helped to reduce expenditures, was in a large part gratuitous, and the assumption or inference intended to be drawn from these remarks that everybody who had participated in making this report had for his purpose an increase of expenditures, or that the adoption of this report would increase expenditures, was equally gratuitous.

After a few remarks by Mr. Barrows, of Michigan, in support of the proposition, the motion was read by clauses for amendment.

Mr. Springer, of Illinois, offered an amendment for a division of the Committee on Rivers and Canals into two committees, and this proposition was favored by Mr. Henderson, of Illinois; Mr. Murphy, of Iowa, and others of the advocates of the Hennepin canal scheme, and by members from interests of railways and canals were so antagonistic, the one to the other, that they should not be combined under the jurisdiction of one committee.

The House, however, refused to order a division by a vote of 94 to 133.

A proposition to create a "constitutional amendment" committee, represented by Mr. Hayne, of Pennsylvania, having been defeated through the vigorous opposition of Mr. Tucker, of Virginia, an amendment was offered by Mr. Payne, of New York, to give the committee on elections, and Dakota a right to go as far as Tennessee, California and Michigan had proceeded.

Mr. Butler remarked that if the proceedings in Dakota were regular and proper, no one would more quickly recognize the fact than himself. He had offered the resolution for the purpose of ascertaining the facts. He thought the Senate of Indiana had been working himself into a passion unnecessarily.

Mr. Harrison replied that he was not in a passion. "The Senator," said he, "may not be capable of a passion, or he would be able to discriminate." [Laughter.] Mr. Harrison briefly reviewed the question of the admission of Territories, and said that the Democrats, at every rate, ought not to question the propriety of the action of Dakota.

Mr. Butler said that no question of politics was involved.

Mr. Harrison was glad that Mr. Butler took so statesmanlike a view of the subject.

Mr. Butler inquired whether Mr. Harrison would sustain an action by the Territory of Utah similar to the recent action of Dakota.

Mr. Harrison replied that he would, but reserved to Congress the power to approve or disapprove their constitution, which Dakota now recognized and admitted by Dakota.

Mr. McMillin said that Minnesota had been admitted to the Union without any enabling act, and Democratic Senators had been elected ready to take their seats immediately upon the passage of the act of admission.

After further debate, the matter went over till to-morrow, and the Presidential succession bill was taken up, and Mr. Evarts addressed the Senate on it. He took the ground that the succession provided for by the bill now before the Senate was the only possible constitutional exercise of the very limited power accorded by the Constitution to Congress. Mr. Evarts spoke about one hour, and was listened to with the utmost attention, both on the floor and in the galleries.

[The following words from Mr. Edmunds in reply to Mr. Evarts, and differing from him as to the "very limited power of Congress," the Edmunds amendment was voted down—yeas, 31; nays, 37. The Edmunds amendment was the one striking out the clause.]

The bill then passed without division, as reported from the committee.

House of Representatives.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17.—In the House Mr. Dibble, of South Carolina, asked leave to introduce a joint resolution, proposing a constitutional amendment, providing that in case of removal from office by death, resignation or constitutional inability, both of the President and Vice-President of the United States, the office of President shall devolve on a second Vice-President, who shall be voted for in distinct ballots at the same time and in like manner, and for the same term as the President and Vice-President, by electors appointed by the several States. The second Vice-President shall preside over the Senate in the absence of the Vice-President or in case the office of President shall devolve upon the Vice-President.

Mr. Randall, of Pennsylvania, said that he had a like measure, which he would like to go with the proposition of the gentleman from South Carolina.

Mr. Tucker, of Virginia, saw no reason why the measures should have precedence, and he objected to their introduction. The subject of the rules then came up for discussion, Mr. Morrison, of Illinois, stating that he would try to close the general debate at 4 o'clock today.

Mr. Long, of Massachusetts, agreed with the gentleman who demanded the largest parliamentary freedom for representatives of the people here. There was only one way in which the House could have absolute liberty. That was to abolish all rules and all committees and all restriction on debate, and to remand itself to the condition of a debating society. Nobody proposed to do that. The simple question before the House was whether the House, having agreed that reform measures were necessary to cure the evils under which it was suffering, should go further and take from the Appropriation Committee the bills heretofore in its charge and distribute them among eight or nine other committees. The result would be friction and delay, and possibly combinations. The thing to do was to shear the Appropriation Committee of every vestige of power of enacting general legislation in the form of riders or amendments to appropriation bills. This power should be taken away, but the appropriation bills should be left with one committee. The question was not simply to distribute bills; it went further than that. The proposition now was to destroy, abolish and annihilate the Appropriation Committee as far as responsibility for the expenditures of the country was concerned.

Mr. McMillin, of Tennessee, did not believe that the question presented was one of confidence or want of confidence in the integrity of members of the House. The question was whether the House should have a committee supervising the expenditures of the government, and he would oppose a distribution of the appropriation bills for the same reason that he would a proposition to divide the duty of the Committee on Ways and Means—to give the subject of tariff to one committee and of internal revenue to another. He regarded the proposed change as one which would permit amendments increasing expenditures and rule out those tending to reduce them.

Several other speeches followed. Randall, of Pennsylvania, in closing the debate in opposition to the majority report, said that he knew, and members who had served upon the Appropriation Committee knew, that in the effort to resist undue appropriations they had been engaged in a thankless task, but he had never known that there would be those in public station who would rise up and condemn a man or set of men who were engaged in the laudable purpose of saving the expenditure of public money. The gentleman from New York (Hiscock) had stated, as he (Randall) thought to his discredit, that on one occasion, in order to execute a certain policy, he had found it incumbent on him to delay appropriation bills. He (Randall) submitted that as to the tariff, river and harbor and inter-state commerce bills, the Committee on Appropriations never had interposed, except when it was essential that Congress should pass appropriation bills. The policy which the Committee on Appropriations had adopted when under the control of the Democratic party had been one of economy. The founder of Democracy, Jefferson, said that there should be no money appropriated for any purpose unless there was direct authority in the Constitution of the United States for the end. The River and Harbor bill was only objected to when it went outside of the Constitution, and Congress had no right to collect taxes in order to make such a distribution of them. He did not say that one set of men were abler than another, not that one set possessed more integrity of purpose than another; he resisted the proposed change solely because he believed it was entering on the dangerous field of appropriation of the public money.

Mr. Morrison, of Illinois, said the assumption of the gentleman from Pennsylvania, that any committee was at fault with the appropriation committee or any member of it, because it had helped to reduce expenditures, was in a large part gratuitous, and the assumption or inference intended to be drawn from these remarks that everybody who had participated in making this report had for his purpose an increase of expenditures, or that the adoption of this report would increase expenditures, was equally gratuitous.

After a few remarks by Mr. Barrows, of Michigan, in support of the proposition, the motion was read by clauses for amendment.

Mr. Springer, of Illinois, offered an amendment for a division of the Committee on Rivers and Canals into two committees, and this proposition was favored by Mr. Henderson, of Illinois; Mr. Murphy, of Iowa, and others of the advocates of the Hennepin canal scheme, and by members from interests of railways and canals were so antagonistic, the one to the other, that they should not be combined under the jurisdiction of one committee.

ENLARGED SHEET

FRIDAY, DECEMBER 18, 1885.

A Party of the Name of Samudu.

In August last a dispatch written by Mr. Lewis, United States Consul in Sierra Leone, was given to the public by Secretary Bayard, and published in the TIMES telegraphic budget. In this dispatch Mr. Lewis gave a graphic description of the operations of a new native leader in South Africa who was carrying all before him. Mr. Lewis regarded Samudu, this new Napoleon of the uncivilized nations of interior and South Africa, as the forerunner of a new civilization, and he intimated that this new chief would open a way to the emigration of the colored people from the United States. He saw in Samudu's operations the beginning of a new era of prosperity for Liberia, Sierra Leone, and adjacent countries.

In commenting on this the Chicago Inter Ocean called for a bill of particulars, and asked if it were not possible that Consul Lewis was a Mulhatton. The dispatch read very much as would one of Mulhatton's best efforts from Texas or from the Tennessee mountains. The Weekly News of Sierra Leone takes up this intimation that the report of Samudu's operations may be fiction, and declares that further information from the interior not only verifies the statements of Mr. Lewis, but shows that he did not fully appreciate the extent and significance of the movement.

The editor of the News vouches for Mr. Lewis, but who, inquires the Inter Ocean, vouches for the editor? We are now informed that a portion of Samudu's army has been in Freetown, and it is stated that Samudu has learned the value of European weapons of war, and that one reason for his rapid movement toward the coast is to reach a place where he can purchase such materials in large quantities. This is thrown out as a hint to America and England, or to the manufacturers of rifles and pistols, that a great trade in all materials of war may spring up, and that Sierra Leone will be the field of this trade. It is further stated that this new African leader is acting in harmony with the views of the government of Sierra Leone as to the roads and encouragement of trade, and that so far as he is concerned there is no probability of a religious or a race war.

It is a little difficult to resist the suspicion that the Sierra Leone Association is working up a boom for that country and using this new negro Napoleon as a strong card. If he is making toward the coast with the idea of securing a large supply of war material, and if he is opening roads and overturning native governments and supporting the independent tribes all in harmony with the views of the government of one British colony, he is a wonderful fellow. But if he is such a wonderful fellow some of his achievements ought to have been reported from some other quarter than Consul Lewis and the Sierra Leone Weekly News. If the half that is told of Samudu is true, important developments in South Africa may be expected.

THERE were frauds in Cincinnati in the interest of the Democratic legislative candidates so clumsy and brazen that no decent Democrat excused or defended them. The Circuit Court at Cincinnati took cognizance of these frauds and ordered that certificates be issued to the Republican candidates. The Supreme Court, it is announced, has overruled this decision and ordered that certificates be issued to the Democrats. The Democratic party in Ohio, says the Chicago Inter-Ocean, thus stands committed to the defense of a fraud as outrageous as that which a majority of Democrats in Chicago condemned and repudiated. But the triumph of fraud in Cincinnati will not make the Ohio Legislature Democratic.

THE disturbances in the Mexican State of Nuevo Leon are being made the most of by those who desire to embarrass the Mexican national government. The State is little more than one-third as large as the State of Illinois, and resembles it in shape. The population is about 203,000, with fully one-half of this gathered in the cities and towns. Galleans, the seat of the revolutionary disturbances, has a population of about 7000, while Monterey, the capital, has a population of 42,000. Americans are interested in the disturbances, because they occur in the territory through which passes the Mexican National Railway. There is intrigue of some character at the bottom of the business.

THE Toledo Post notes the fact that the farmers of the Western Reserve are organizing for a raid on the bogus butter makers. It adds this suggestion: "If they will also stir up the fellows who sell rocks in loads of hay, the public will feel better." The idea of these hay merchants seems to be that there is no virtue in grass, consequently they try stones.

WE have heard nothing from the Soudan these many days, and it sounds familiar to read as follows, to-wit:

LONDON, Dec. 14.—A dispatch from Cairo says the rebels have pillaged and burned Ferkat and other villages.

Now if the cable would only bring us tidings of the state of the Schleswig-Holstein question, we could die content.

COLONEL A. K. MCCLURE says the tariff revision is inevitable, and the only question is whether the friends of protection will come forward and mould the new tariff or leave the work to less friendly hands. The Colonel can rest satisfied that the friends of protection will be there to help mould.

"THE man who knows the least requires the greatest space to tell it." This is the beginning and ending of an able editorial in the Chicago Inter Ocean, which seems to be obliquely aimed at the President of the United States, who has recently perpetrated an exhausting message upon Congress and the country.

A Jerseyman on Climate and Things.

To the Editor of the Times—SIR: In coming overland I stopped a few days at Tucson. It had been raining hard, and the Santa Cruz river was running high and its water carrying a vast amount of mud and sediment. Still the same water, taken out of the river a short distance above the town and furnished the people of Tucson by the water company, was perfectly pure and clear as crystal.

Upon inquiry, I learned that this was all accomplished in a simple manner by the skill of the engineer who had constructed the water works. He had simply run the water from the river into a forebay, where all sedimentary matter was deposited, and then conducted in pipes and delivered in Tucson. The simplicity and perfection of the plan caused me to inquire the name of the engineer, and I learned that it was Culver. Upon further inquiry I found it was our John P. Culver, who was Chief Engineer of Jersey City from 1870 to 1875, (I am a Jerseyman) and who gave us our perfect system of sewerage and surface drainage, that have proven so satisfactory ever since, and who built our splendid water works, of which we are so justly proud.

On arriving in Los Angeles, I found the water full of sediment and tasting simply vile, and was informed that the water of the Los Angeles river was simply run in a ditch into a small reservoir, and from that delivered in pipes to consumers; not freed of sediment and impurities, but rendered more impure by reason of the pipes and mains being nearly filled by sediment and sunlace weeds and drainage, which, being confined in the pipes, had become putrid, and rendered the water unpleasant to taste and unhealthy to use. I was informed that the bad quality of the water was charged as the cause of much sickness and many deaths, and that it had caused many people of means to seek homes elsewhere. On further inquiry, I was told that these water-works had been improperly constructed by a young protege of one of the principal owners.

I am told that John P. Culver, who is now a citizen of Los Angeles, has been consulted, and readily devised a plan of freeing the water of all sedimentary impurities, and of clearing the pipes and mains from their clogged and filthy condition; which plan it is the interest of the company to avail themselves of in the near future.

Now, in view of these facts, can you imagine my surprise on hearing the rumor that a caucus of stalwart, cold-water Republicans, who had been elected because they were supposed to be honest and intelligent, had perpetrated the political and business blunder of selecting the very man [a Democrat] who built those badly constructed works, in preference to Culver, the Republican, as candidate for the office of City Engineer? The matter is utterly beyond my comprehension.

Everything that surprises me here, I am told is the result of your "glorious climate." Now, I would like to know if this, also, is the result of climate?

NEIGHBORHOOD NEWS.

FLORENCE.

PERSONAL AND SHORT STOPS.

FLORENCE, Dec. 17.—Frosty mornings in some localities lately.

The plowmen are very busy, encouraged by the late rains.

Muscat grape cuttings are being cut quite extensively for rooting. Raisin grapes paid well this year.

The roads are some better than before the rains. Encouraging to road overseers.

Jim Fackrell is "sowing seeds of kindness" for his neighbors, alfalfa, etc., with a machine.

Everett Thaxter is talking of building a new house and lining it with calico. Good enough!

Julian Wright, of Green Meadows, stepped off into matrimony the other day. That's all (W)right, too.

H. B. Ablis, of Tajauta, is acting the part of a granger on his ranch at Pomona.

The $360 laid down to bind the bargain on the Bothwell ranch, reported sold, was forfeited.

Mr. Bogardus has sold his 25-acre ranch for $4000, so recorded.

The fruit growers are anxiously awaiting the action of the Fruit Growers' Association. People have tolerated certain wholesale firms, who are appearing to fight against the association, long enough.

Ralph Stahl, the boy who was accidentally shot at Tajauta on Thanksgiving day, is hobbling around on crutches. About twenty shots were extracted from his leg.

Mr. Webb is in feeble health.

Postmaster Clark has just bored a well 78 feet in depth. The water rises to within fifteen feet of the surface. He is also putting in additional shelving in his store to accommodate the increasing demand for his goods.

ORANGE.

THE ORANGE BOOM—WOODEN WEDDING, ETC. Correspondence of the Times.]

ORANGE, Dec. 16.—The orange boom is getting bigger every day.

Gathering clouds begin to threaten rain.

Orange needs more hotel accommodations.

Several parties from our town have attended the tabernacle meetings in Los Angeles.

The result of your city election is very gratifying to your many law and order subscribers in this valley.

The wooden wedding of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Snyder, Mountain View district, was celebrated by a surprise gathering of friends at their home Monday, the 14th.

The Methodist social last week, at the residence of Mr. Foster, and the Presbyterian social at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lyons, were both very pleasant and well attended.

There is much complaint because, with all our freight and railroad business, there is no agent at Orange station. Strangers stopping here from the evening train are unceremoniously landed in darkness, but the expected new road will make a change.

Engineers on the new railroad down the cañon from Riverside have already reached the Cajon ditch with their survey and will be at Barrell Point in a few days.

University Place Items.

W. A. Bell, late of York, Nebraska, highly recommended as an architect, broke ground yesterday for a fine residence, within a stone's throw of the University. Mr. Bell, attracted by the climate of Southern California, has come to stay. And so they come. It will not be long till the attractions of this beautiful suburb will catch the eyes of the many strangers seeking homes in this unrivaled land. Houses are constantly going up.

The meat market opened some weeks ago collapsed in about five days, not, however, for want of patronage, for the one opened since is having good success.

Rev. Mr. Cobb, of Santa Barbara, preached an interesting sermon in the M. E. church last Sabbath. The pastor, some weeks since, inaugurated a novel service, requesting all who chose to do so, to bring flowers for distribution in the City Hospital, to be distributed in a box. An interesting report from Mrs. Colburn, the pastor's wife, a Sunday or two ago, showed how these beautiful mementoes cheered sad hearts, confined in their narrow rooms, and many in their beds.

James Bovard, father of President Bovard of the University, arrived a few days since from Indiana and proposes to make his permanent home. He is delighted with our Summer climate and jocosely said: "Christmas would seem more like a Fourth of July holiday than Christmas."

In order to assure the public a fair opportunity to attend Mme. Judic's very limited number of performances in Los Angeles, Messrs. McLain & Lehman have decided to open a subscription list on the Judic season, and have established the following scale of prices:

Subscription tickets for the two performances, including reserved seats, in dress circle or parquet..... $4 00
Brass..... 10 00

Price for single performances:
Dress circle or parquet, reserved..... 2 50
Balcony, four rows reserved..... 1 50
Balcony, general admission..... 1 00
Single Tickets—The sale of seats for single night performances will take place at the box office at the Opera House on Friday, December 18, at 10 o'clock.

Subscription Tickets—The reserved seat plan is now open at our office for the sale of subscription tickets. Respectfully,
McLAIN & LEHMAN.

ENLARGED SHEET

FRIDAY, DECEMBER 18, 1885.

A Party of the Name of Samadu.

In August last a dispatch written by Mr. Lewis, United States Consul in Sierra Leone, was given to the public by Secretary Bayard, and published in the TIMES telegraphic budget. In this dispatch Mr. Lewis gave a graphic description of the operations of a new native leader in South Africa who was carrying all before him. Mr. Lewis regarded Samudu, this new Napoleon of the uncivilized nations of interior and South Africa, as the forerunner of a new civilization, and he intimated that this new chief would open a way to the emigration of the colored people from the United States. He saw in Samadu's operations the beginning of a new era of prosperity for Liberia, Sierra Leone, and adjacent countries.

In commenting on this the Chicago Inter Ocean called for a bill of particulars, and asked if it were not possible that Consul Lewis was a Mulhatton. The dispatch read very much as would one of Mulhatton's best efforts from Texas or from the Tennessee mountains. The Weekly News of Sierra Leone takes up this intimation that the report of Samudu's operations may be fiction, and declares that further information from the interior not only verifies the statements of Mr. Lewis, but shows that he did not fully appreciate the extent and significance of the movement.

The editor of the News vouches for Mr. Lewis, but who, inquires the Inter Ocean, vouches for the editor? We are now informed that a portion of Samudu's army has been in Freetown, and it is stated that Samudu has learned the value of European weapons of war, and that one reason for his rapid movement toward the coast is to reach a place where he can purchase such materials in large quantities. This is thrown out as a hint to America and England, or to the manufacturers of rifles and pistols, that a great trade in all materials of war may spring up, and that Sierra Leone will be the field of this trade. It is further stated that this new African leader is acting in harmony with the views of the government of Sierra Leone as to the roads and encouragement of trade, and that so far as he is concerned there is no probability of a religious or a race war.

It is a little difficult to resist the suspicion that the Sierra Leone Association is working up a boom for that country and using this new negro Napoleon as a strong card. If he is making toward the coast with the idea of securing a large supply of war material, and if he is opening roads and overturning native governments and supporting the independent tribes all in harmony with the views of the government of one British colony, he is a wonderful fellow. But if he is such a wonderful fellow some of his achievements ought to have been reported from some other quarter than Consul Lewis and the Sierra Leone Weekly News. If the half that is told of Samudu is true, important developments in South Africa may be expected.

THERE were frauds in Cincinnati in the interest of the Democratic legislative candidates so clumsy and brazen that no decent Democrat excused or defended them. The Circuit Court at Cincinnati took cognizance of these frauds and ordered that certificates be issued to the Republican candidates. The Supreme Court, it is announced, has overruled this decision and ordered that certificates be issued to the Democrats. The Democratic party in Ohio, says the Chicago Inter-Ocean, thus stands committed to the defense of a fraud as outrageous as that which a majority of Democrats in Chicago condemned and repudiated. But the triumph of fraud in Cincinnati will not make the Ohio Legislature Democratic.

THE disturbances in the Mexican State of Nuevo Leon are being made the most of by those who desire to embarrass the Mexican national government. The State is little more than one-third as large as the State of Illinois, and resembles it in shape. The population is about 203,000, with fully one-half of this gathered in the cities and towns. Galleana, the sent of the revolutionary disturbances, has a population of about 7000, while Monterey, the capital, has a population of 42,000. Americans are interested in the disturbances, because they occur in the territory through which passes the Mexican National Railway. There is intrigue of some character at the bottom of the business.

THE Toledo Post notes the fact that the farmers of the Western Reserve are organizing for a raid on the bogus butter makers. It adds this suggestion: "If they will also stir up the fellows who sell rocks in loads of hay, the public will feel better." The idea of these hay merchants seems to be that there is no virtue in grass, consequently they try stones.

WE have heard nothing from the Soudan these many days, and it sounds familiar to read as follows, to-wit:

LONDON, Dec. 14.—A dispatch from Cairo says the rebels have rallied and burned Berber and other villages.

Now if the cable would only bring us tidings of the state of the Schleswig-Holstein question, we could die content.

COLONEL A. K. MCCLURE says the tariff revision is inevitable, and the only question is whether the friends of protection will come forward and mould the new tariff or leave the work to less friendly hands. The Colonel can rest satisfied that the friends of protection will be there to help mould.

"THE man who knows the least requires the greatest space to tell it." This is the beginning and ending of an able editorial in the Chicago Inter Ocean, which seems to be obliquely aim d at the President of the United States, who has recently perpetrated an exhausting message upon Congress and the country.

A Jerseyman on Climate and Things.

To the Editor of the Times—SIR: In coming overland I stopped a few days at Tucson. It had been raining hard, and the Santa Cruz river was running high and its water carrying a vast amount of mud and sediment. Still the same water, taken out of the river a short distance above the town and furnished the people of Tucson by the water company, was perfectly pure and clear as crystal.

Upon inquiry, I learned that this was all accomplished in a simple manner by the skill of the engineer who had constructed the water works. He had simply run the water from the river into a forebay, where all sedimentary matter was deposited, and then conducted in pipes and delivered to Tucson. The simplicity and perfection of the plan caused me to inquire the name of the engineer, and I learned that it was Culver. Upon further inquiry I found it was our John P. Culver, who was Chief Engineer of Jersey City from 1870 to 1875, (I am a Jerseyman) and who gave us our perfect system of sewerage and surface drainage, that have proven so satisfactory ever since, and who built our splendid water works, of which we are so justly proud.

On arriving in Los Angeles, I found the water full of sediment and tasting simply vile, and was informed that the water of the Los Angeles river was simply run in a ditch into a small reservoir, and from that delivered in pipes to consumers; not freed of sediment and impurities, but rendered more impure by reason of the pipes and mains being nearly filled by sediment and surface wash and drainage, which, being confined in the pipes, had become putrid, and rendered the water unpleasant to taste and unhealthy to use. I was informed that the bad quality of the water was charged as the cause of much sickness and many deaths, and that it had caused many people of means to seek homes elsewhere. On further inquiry, I was told that these water-works had been improperly constructed by a young protege of one of the principal owners.

I am told that John P. Culver, who is now a citizen of Los Angeles, has been consulted, and readily devised a plan of freeing the water of all sedimentary impurities, and also of clearing the pipes and mains from their clogged and filthy condition; which plan it is the interest of the company to avail themselves of in the near future.

Now, in view of these facts, can you imagine my surprise on hearing the rumor that a caucus of stalwart, cold-water Republicans, who had been elected because they were supposed to be honest and intelligent, had perpetrated the political and business blunder of selecting the very man [a Democrat] who built those badly constructed works, in preference to Culver, the Republican, as candidate for the office of City Engineer? The matter is utterly beyond my comprehension.

Everything that surprises me here, I am told is the result of your "glorious climate." Now, I would like to know if this, also, is the result of climate?

A NEW-COMER.

FLORENCE.

PERSONAL AND SHORT STOPS.

Correspondence of the Times.]

FLORENCE, Dec. 17.—Frosty mornings in some localities lately.

The plowmen are very busy, encouraged by the late rains.

Muscat grape cuttings are being cut quite extensively for rooting. Raisin grapes paid well this year.

The roads are some better than before the rains. Encouraging to road overseers.

Jim Jackson is "sowing seeds of kindness" for his neighbors, alfalfa, etc., with a machine.

Everett Thaxter is talking of building a new house and lining it with calico. Good enough!

Julian Wright, of Green Meadows, stepped off into matrimony the other day. That's all (W)right, too.

H. B. Ablis, of Tajauta, is acting the part of a granger on his ranch at Pomona. The $360 paid down to bind the bargain on the Bothwell ranch, reported sold, was forfeited.

Mr. Boynton has sold his 25-acre ranch for $4000, so recorded.

The fruit growers are anxiously awaiting the action of the Fruit Growers' Association. People have tolerated certain wholesale firms, who are appearing to fight against the association, long enough.

Ralph Stahl, the boy who was accidentally shot at Tajauta on Thanksgiving day, is hobbling around on crutches. About twenty shots were extracted from his leg.

Mr. Webb is in feeble health.

Postmaster Clark has just bored a well 76 feet in depth. The water rises to within fifteen feet of the surface. He is also putting in additional shelving in his store to accommodate the increasing demand for his goods.

ORANGE.

THE ORANGE BOOM—WOODEN WEDDING, ETC.

Correspondence of the Times.]

ORANGE, Dec. 16.—The orange boom is getting bigger every day.

Gathering clouds begin to threaten rain.

Orange needs more hotel accommodations.

Several parties from our town have attended the tabernacle meetings in Los Angeles.

The result of your city election is very gratifying to your many law and order subscribers in this valley.

The wooden wedding of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Snyder, Mountain View district, was celebrated by a surprise gathering of friends at their home Monday, the 14th.

The Methodist social last week, at the residence of Mr. Foster, and the Presbyterian social at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lyons, were both very pleasant and well attended.

There is much complaint because, with all our freight and railroad business, there is no agent at Orange station. Strangers stopping here from the evening train are unceremoniously landed in darkness, but the expected new road will make a change. Engineers on the new railroad down the section from Riverside have already reached the Cajon ditch with their survey and will be at Burrell Point in a few days.

University Place Items.

W. A. Bell, late of York, Nebraska, highly recommended as an architect, broke ground yesterday for a fine residence, within a stone's throw of the University. Mr. Bell, attracted by the climate of Southern California, has come to stay. And so they come. It will not be long till the attractions of this beautiful suburb will catch the eyes of the many strangers seeking homes in this unrivaled land. Houses are constantly going up.

The meat market opened some weeks ago collapsed in about five days, not, however, for want of patronage, for the one opened since is having good success.

Rev. Mr. Cobb, of Santa Barbara, preached an interesting sermon in the M. E. church last Sabbath. The pastor, some weeks since, inaugurated a novel service, requesting all who chose to do so, to bring flowers for distribution in the City Hospital, to be distributed in a box. An interesting report from Mrs. Colburn, the pastor's wife, a Sunday or two ago, showed how these beautiful mementoes cheered sad hearts, confined in their narrow rooms, and many in their beds.

James Bovard, father of President Bovard of the University, arrived a few days since from Indiana and proposes to make this his permanent home. He is delighted with our Summer climate and jocosely said: "Christmas would seem more like a Fourth of July holiday than Christmas."

ELEGANT ESTATE IN PASADENA

FOR SALE OR EXCHANGE.

THIS PROPERTY IS CENTRALLY SITUATED, UPON THE CORNER OF THE Tower in the center; contains ten rooms, with a wide veranda on all sides; well cellar under the whole house. A nice stable, corral, hay shed, &c., on the premises. Ten acres of land under a high state of cultivation, about 300 orange trees, a large variety of all kinds of deciduous trees and grs. The trees are all in full bearing and the fruit is of the choicest varieties, about $1000 worth of fruit will probably be sold from the place this year. A beautiful lime hedge incloses the property. The grounds around the house are closely laid out, with lawns, shrubbery and flowers of all kinds. The property has a large amount of water now with the place. Iron fences are laid around the property, and all the streets that each street can be trimmed by horse.

Pasadena, now that the railroad is completed, is growing very rapidly, and is more desirable as a home, on account of the pure air and mountain water. A horse railroad will soon be built in front of this place. This is one of the prettiest and most desirable places in Pasadena, and such an opportunity to secure a lovely home in the most beautiful suburb is rarely offered. Terms reasonable, or will exchange for property in Los Angeles. For further particulars apply to

GRADUATES.

Scholars of the Normal Christmas Class of 1885

SPEAK PIECES AND TAKE DIPLOMAS.

Exercises in the Grand Opera House Yesterday—Eighteen Schoolma'ams and Four Schoolmasters Set Adrift.

A graduating class is always an exhilarating spectacle. The tastily-dressed, bright-faced girls and the manly boys who bring their store of school knowledge and face the world with a frank and fair request for admission into its busy walks, challenge respect and admiration. In three earnest, hopeful natures, those who have been buffeted up and down find a renewal of their faith in humankind.

The graduating exercises of the Christmas class of the Normal School drew to the Grand Opera House yesterday afternoon a large assemblage. Nearly every seat was filled. A large proportion of the attendants were ladies.

The front of the stage was decorated with floral offerings, in bouquets, baskets, crosses, anchors, wreaths, horseshoes and about every fanciful device that loving hands could conjure up, each offering being ticketed with the name of one of the graduates. Upon the stage were seated the eighteen young ladies and four young gentlemen of the graduating class, ranged in two rows, while professors and teachers were seated on either hand. O. W. Childs, a member of the Board of Regents, also occupied a seat on the stage. The young ladies were attired with simple elegance, but without an attempt at uniformity, the shades of their dresses ranging through white, cream color, pink and blue, to drab and brown.

Music was furnished by the Heine Quartette, which occupied the orchestra space.

The Opera House was lighted with gas as for an evening affair.

Promptly at 2 o'clock Principal Ira More opened the programme by announcing the chorus-greeting song, by the class. In this, as in the other musical features that were interspersed through the exercises, the young people acquitted themselves handsomely, showing that they had received conscientious training. A number of the young ladies have charming voices.

The succeeding features of the programme were as follows:

Invocation by Rev. A. J. Wells.

Essay, "Chivalry," Emily J. Hamilton.

Essay, "Our Antagonist Our Helper," Mary E. Smith.

Class History, Olivia Day.

Anthem, "Oh, Give Thanks!"

Oration, "Different Standpoints," W. Fred. Taylor.

Class Prophecy, Alice E. Smith.

Essay, "Fiction the Handmaid of History," Ray Good.

Violin Solo, Miss Lizzie Heine.

Essay, "Peculiarities of the Lake Poets," Mary E. Foy.

Poem, "Fannies," Jessie Gill.

Essay, "Thoreau's Experiment," Leonora Hassler.

Trio, Misses King, Good and M. Smith.

Oration, "Character in Politics," Henry A. Fisk.

Essay, "The Poetic Temperament," Corinne E. King.

Chorus, "Youthful Memories."

Presentation of diplomas by the Principal.

Class Song.

The class song, written by Miss Corinne E. King, was published in Wednesday's TIMES.

The young people delivered their several orations and essays in a most creditable manner, and, without exception, made themselves heard in the farthest corners of the house. Miss Hamilton's essay; Miss Gill's poem, and Mr. Fisk's oration are especially worthy of mention in this respect. Miss Foy's essay on the Lake Poets was a discriminating and scholarly production.

The class history of Miss Olivia Day was well written and well read.

The following-named members of the class prepared essays which were not read at the public exercises:

Carrie W. Atkinson, "The Influence of Fashion;" Ida M. Bailey, "The Scholar's Attitude towards Truth;" Alice J. Cushing, "Enthusiasm an Element of Success;" Olivia Day, "The Heathen Chinee;" Margie C. Downing, "Woman as a Political Factor;" Ellsworth Gerry, "The Indian Question;" Jessie Gill, "Body the Basis of Mind;" Jessie C. Grow, "The True Work of the Teacher;" Richard B. Haydock, "The Tehuantepec Canal;" Lucy B. Huie, "Our Duty to Our Mother Tongue;" Anna D. Morrison, "Spain the Land of Romance;" May Plank, "Measure for Measure;" Alice E. Smith, "Educational Waste;" Louse L. Williamson, "Painting in Colors and Words."

In the presentation of the diplomas, the class marched in a circle about the stage, each receiving his or her parchment with a happy little speech from Principal More, in which he made some reference to the topic of the recipient's essay.

Following is Miss Alice E. Smith's

CLASS PROPHECY.

One clear, bright evening the Senior A's of December '85, one and all, began on a frolic, trudged down the slope of the Normal hill to a spot behind the Magnetic Observatory; and there each threw down his old note and scratch-books that they might again be changed to their pure native elements.

When the complex combination of algebra, astronomy, geometry, physics, et cetera, was well piled in a heap, with a chemical compound for the foundation, our worthy class president, Mr. Fisk, caused a little brimstone to form connection with a famous old chemistry notebook, and the book sprang forth in a red flame. It spread its raging fire to many neighbors until all were in a blaze. I looked and I listened. The flames, in their anger, seemed to me to form the images of the future, as if to haunt the persons who were circling around.

As I watched the flames, a ship sailed before me. The hand that had scratched the fatal match was resting upon the railing of the deck, and I recognized, in the person, our old class-mate, although ten years had passed over his head.

His dress was that of a British Admiral and the vessel, bound for his own loved country, sailed swiftly from my sight; but not before I had caught a glimpse of Jessie Gill among its passengers.

Her love for the briny deep had prompted her to take a long sea-voyage. This was the last sight I had of her,—unless, I am not quite sure,—I saw her ghost in the cave where the water-melons were buried, once upon a time.

The flames leaped higher, and I saw in the parlors of a prominent Senator, a gay assemblage of ladies and gentlemen, and our little Miss Grow occupying the place of hostess.

She was perfectly at home and was at that moment, presenting a small man with a large title to Mardge Downing.

To all appearances, Mardge had met her fate. Suddenly the brilliant lights of this scene changed to the more sombre shade of an office and I saw Ellsworth Gerry sitting by the desk. His brow was stern as he weighed the evidence of the case before him.

He closed the book and the room brightened into a cosily furnished apartment with little work tables here and there. At one, sat a bright little figure, our old pianist, Ida Bailey.

She was receiving instructions from the famous Worth preparatory to the establishment of a branch house in America.

These objects were wafted from my sight and Mr. Hamilton appeared in the flames. I saw the renowned observatory and one of our great astronomers within. Beside him was his aid and helpmate, who was once May Plank.

May's mathematical proficiency had doubtless increased as the square of the years past. Here the wind came whistling around what seemed the corner of a stone mansion, and I heard footsteps.

They came nearer and nearer. Soon our little Leonora, a traveler covered with the dust of many countries, bounded up the marble steps.

She had been spied from the window, and our classmate, Dick, with his gentle wife beside him, flung open wide the doors to greet their old friend.

As he closed the doors the steps appeared to widen into a stage, and around was a large, expectant audience. A pleased murmur greeted my ears as the lecturer, Emily Hamilton, stepped before them.

One of the dancing figures, that reminded me of school-days passed, here stirred the fire, and I saw again the old Normal Hall.

It seemed to be the evening for chorus singing, and I heard the sonorous tones of the tenors and basses strike the accented beat of the measure, I saw the baton, in Mary Smith's hand, come up on the last beat.

From the discordant sounds and the accompanying frown upon the leader's face, I judged that the music had been on the decline during the past ten years.

Confusion veiled the scene and pleasant Alice Cushing, with the air of a professional lady, quietly opened a door of the boarding house of a noted college and stood before an old friend.

I could not see why the plump, robust lady, reeling on a sofa, should call in a physician; and Alice said, "Carrie, I will not advise you to take anti-fat, but if you are determined to do so, I have nothing to say. By the way, have you heard lately of our old class-mate Livy Day?

"Well, she has finally taken my advice, and has received the means from her benevolent fourteenth cousin, Queen Victoria, has gone to China for a change of climate. Her interest in the heathen Chinee may have influenced her decision. Her many friends will miss her."

The smoke hid the doctor and her patient from my view and when it cleared away I saw Louisa Williamson seated in the front row of a teachers' institute. She rose and I heard her explaining her method of teaching numbers.

Another teacher, interested in kindergardens, wished to get their thoughts upon that subject, and that they might better understand the matter, he introduced to them the Superintendent of those schools, Miss Lucy Huie.

I left them in their discussions and looked away. I saw, riding toward me, a herdsman, leading a black horse.

I followed him with my gaze and saw him admitted to a magnificently furnished office, where, seated at a table, was a lady to whom the man bowed low and whom he addressed, not as "Cora King," nor "Cattle King," but as "Our Great Cattle Queen."

He must have brought her important news, for, after a hasty preparation, she mounted the black steed and they rode away. As they went, I noticed crape upon her cap and surmised that she was carrying on her deceased father's extensive business.

When the cloud of dust settled, I saw a large number of girls in a gymnasium with Miss Foy at their head. They seemed attired by the feats of the hour, and I heard her say: "Young ladies, please march to your rooms now and in thirty minutes be in the club room, prepared with the plan of Shakespeare's Macbeth."

This reminded me that, in days of yore, she believed strongly in both mental and physical development.

The girls retired and I saw, in their stead, a bier. Beside it was the wreck of an electro flying machine and a slender woman, weeping. I recognized our Anna, and I heard her moan that she had tried in vain to turn Fred from his unprofitable enterprise, and now he had come to his death. Her Good neighbor, Ray, presently came to console her, saying that she should not feel so badly, for the position of a lone widow was preferable to hers. She had lost two husbands and was now the wife of another with seven children. The smoldering embers removed this sorrowful sight and showed to me a little old log schoolhouse in the backwoods. I was within correcting a refractory pupil. The old clock-hand soon pointed to four and I dismissed the school. The children left the door with a "Hurrah!" and I sat down, dejected.

Soon some one said, "Come, Alice, the fire is out. Note-books, like all else, must, as chimney sweepers, come to dust."

An Audacious Tramp.

Wilcox & Bobbins, 34 North Spring street, employ a Chinaman to clean their office. Yesterday morning at an early hour the Celestial was performing his duties, when a rough-looking tramp attempted to come in.

"Bounce no let anybody come here in the morning," said the Mongolian.

"Yo go helle!" said the tramp, mimicking the Chinaman.

The tramp came in, and taking down a coat belonging to Frank Rust, went through the pockets. He then walked over to the Santa Ana fruit exhibit, and commenced to make a selection of choice oranges. Meanwhile the Chinaman slipped out, closing the door, which has a spring lock. In a few minutes he was back with a policeman, but the tramp had become alarmed and skipped. He was in such a hurry that he forgot to take the oranges and did not secure much plunder of any kind.

Better than a Prohibitory Law—for the Doctor.

Lowell Morning Mail, Dec. 5.]

Two years since, E. P. Crane, one of New York's heaviest and wealthiest business men was counselled to retire permanently from business with a worn out brain. A short time ago, in Atlanta, Ga., the Nerve Food completely restored him in two weeks. Yesterday he came to Lowell, leased Georgia, Alabama and Tennessee of Dr. Thompson, and in two weeks Atlanta will have the largest Nerve Nerve Food manufactory in the country, the Doctor to furnish the extract. Large portions of Canada, the West and Northwest have been similarly let for heavy royalties. The growth of this now colossal business is so, Mr. Thompson has letters from prominent men all over the country saying it does all it claims. Its record on the run matter will give it eternal life.

A Card.

A disease of five years' standing, which threatened to end in inflammation of the bowels, on which I had spent hundreds of dollars for doctors and medicines, was cured by Dr. Wong, the able Chinese physician, in two weeks. I would advise everybody to try him.

The Most Wonderful Automatic Musical Instrument Ever Invented.

Which far surpasses anything of the kind ever placed before the public. Nothing ever like them. The Combination Zither Organ will play anything ever written automatically. We challenge any musician living to execute on an ordinary organ an overture with his hands as well as a novice can with his feet on this wonderful instrument. We call the attention of music loving people to examine these remarkable instruments. The Celestina is a beautiful little instrument, and can be played by a child as well as a professor. Would make a beautiful Christmas or New Year's present.
